The Educational Leadership program offers a master’s (M.Ed.) and a doctoral degree (Ed.D.), both in Educational Leadership. The program also offers K-12 Principal, Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction, and Superintendent (Pennsylvania Letter of Eligibility) certification through the state of Pennsylvania.

The Educational Leadership program is approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education (PDE). Thus, graduates of our approved preparation programs are eligible for state certification.

Our graduates typically assume positions as superintendents, principals, assistant principals, and directors of pupil services, special education, and curriculum and instruction. Some of our graduates are now faculty members in universities where they teach and conduct research. Internationally, our graduates lead schools around the world (for example, in China, Columbia, Italy, and The Middle East).

The Educational Leadership program has a unique blend of both theory and practice, and a long history of excellence and high quality. In addition, through Lehigh’s partnerships and programming, students may have the opportunity to take coursework with peers who work in international schools, bringing a different perspective to their classes. Further, this program has a history of strong commitment to improving educational opportunities for all students. This is evident in the practices of our many graduates who now hold leadership positions in schools and districts in the local area, region, nation and throughout the world.

The International School Leadership Program offers educational opportunities at the master’s and doctoral level to people interested in leadership in the international school community.

The Urban Principals Academy at Lehigh (U*PAL) program is designed to develop urban school leaders who will think and act in ways that disrupt the stagnation and mediocrity that exists in too many of our nation’s schools. This cohort-based program utilizes the underlying themes of creativity and imagination in leadership to address issues of diversity and organizational culture.

The Allentown Principal Leadership Initiative (APLI, pronounced “apply”) focuses on all the current principals and assistant principals, as well as future school administrators, in the Allentown School District (ASD). The program actively recruits exemplary teachers who demonstrate the key attributes for successful turnaround leadership: instructional leadership focused on results, influencing for performance, problem solving, and personal effectiveness. These aspiring leaders participate in a collaboratively designed and individually tailored graduate-level program (at Lehigh University) that includes a full-time yearlong internship in preparation for principal and assistant principal positions in the most at-risk schools in the district. In tandem, current ASD school leaders participate in professional development to promote consistent turnaround leadership practices across the district, and to maintain long-term and sustainable change.
